Complying with copyright law is more challenging to academic institutions than ever before. The traditional focus on photocopied classroom handouts and paper-based interlibrary loan has evolved into a more complex set of content uses such as the Internet, course management systems, customized coursepacks and e-reserves. These newer, faster and more convenient ways of using and sharing information are prompting educators and students alike to ask a whole new set of copyright questions.

Grand Rapids Community College has a comprehensive policy for copyright compliance (see Policy 3.0). This policy includes detailed procedures for obtaining copyright permission and provides institutionally accepted guidelines and interpretations of fair use. In general, when using the work of others you must first determine if copyright permission is required. If the work is protected by copyright law, is not in the public domain and does not meet the criteria for fair use or another specific exception in the copyright law, you must obtain permission from the copyright holder, or its agent, in order to reproduce or reuse the work.

You may need to obtain copyright permission to:
- Distribute a course pack in print or electronic format
- Post content on an e-learning system
- Post content to an institution’s intranet
- Photocopy content for classroom use
- Reproduce an out-of-print book
- Use or republish content in university fundraising or recruiting, or in an exhibit
- Conduct research for non-classroom use (e.g., during an instructor’s private consulting engagement)

For obtaining copyright permission, once the need is identified, contact GRCC’s licensing agent, Copyright Clearance Center @ copyright.com. In many cases, Copyright Clearance Center can provide instant authorization for the use of copyright-protected content. If you need permission to use a title that is not covered in their catalog, they will make every effort to secure the rights on your behalf.

Here’s how to verify coverage under GRCC’s Annual Copyright License:

1. Locate the Annual Copyright License search page: The Annual Copyright License search page on copyright.com can be found at: www.copyright.com/ACLAcademic. Be sure to bookmark this page for easy access in the future.

2. Search for a publication:
   1) Enter the Publication Title or Standard Number (ISBN/ISSN) of the publication that you wish to use.
   2) Under “Annual License – Academic” in the Display Options box you will see pre-selected permissions options.
   3) Click the “Search” button.

3. Verify coverage: In the search results, the most frequently requested publications are displayed first. To view the coverage available for the permission types selected, click the “View selected permissions options” link.
   (a) Covered by CCC Annual License: The type of use selected is covered under your Annual Copyright License.
   “Request Coverage” link and CCC will request that the copyright holder add the publication to our database in the future.
   (c) Public Domain: Copyright permission is not required for this publication. The publication is in the public domain in the United States and may be used without restriction.

In addition, your search results may include special terms from the copyright holder. Click the “Terms Apply” link to view any special terms associated with the publication.
